ABSTRACT

Selected distributors and publishers of Spanish language materials are listed in this directory, which is designed to help the small library improve services to Spanish speaking patrons. The directory supplies addresses for 49 publishers and distributors in the United States and 33 in Spain and Mexico; phone numbers are included for U.S. firms. A brief annotation accompanying each entry contains information on quality of paper and binding, subject matter emphasis, juvenile or adult emphasis, availability of catalog, costs and discounts, and types of print and non-print materials available (books, filmstrips, posters, periodicals, etc.). Annotations for Mexican and Spanish firms note availability of materials through U.S. distributors. Some publishers and distributors included in the directory handle literature of several ethnic groups, including American Indians. The preface provides suggestions for selecting and ordering Spanish language materials. (JH)

Compiled by

Donna Stephenson López
Project Director, Spanish Speaking Services
Maricopa County Library

Arizona State Library Extension Service awarded LSCA funds to Maricopa County Library for a demonstration grant to provide better service to the Spanish speaking. An important part of the grant was the selection and acquisition of Spanish language materials much needed by the small libraries in the County.

This booklet was prepared during the project to meet a need for information on the purchase of Spanish language and Chicano materials. Included are reliable dealers in the United States who handle such materials. The list is by no means comprehensive and I am sure some reliable dealers and worthy publishers have been omitted.

The second section of the booklet includes those publishers and distributors primarily from Mexico and Spain. It is important to know the types of materials they produce as well as the quality of their products. For the small library I do not recommend ordering directly from the foreign publisher because of money and language differences.

A letter was sent to every company listed with the exception of those publishers in Spain. Letters addressed to publishers in Mexico were written in Spanish and almost all responded to my request for their latest catalog or price list. I received some catalogs from the publishers in Spain through certain generous U.S. dealers. Every distributor or publisher listed is known to me through use or purchase of their materials.

Booklists from libraries serving the Spanish speaking are a good start on what to buy. Bibliographies found in the PROYECTO LEER BULLETIN and BOOKLIST are good sources of Spanish language materials. But the best source is your library patron. Ask them what they would like to read. Then ask your dealer to get it for you.

In ordering Spanish materials do not expect 100% completion of your order from one dealer. Dealers have a difficult time working with foreign publishers due to limited editions and import problems. The publishing industry in Latin America and Spain is set up differently than the United States and printings can vary from 2,000 copies to 100,000 copies or more of a popular title. When they are all sold then they print a new "edition". So dealers may sometimes be out of stock and must wait for a new printing. I usually order books from one dealer, tell him to cancel all books not in stock and then I submit those cancellations to another dealer who may have them in stock. You also have the option of letting one dealer handle all your orders and let him back order any titles not on their shelves.

Most of the Spanish language materials are in paperback though some fine hardbound editions are available from certain publishers. These paperbacks vary in degrees of paper quality and sturdiness of binding. The library MUST BE PREPARED TO REINFORCE these materials because they are usually not available in any other format. Chicano materials from small presses also frequently require the same reinforcement.

Hopefully this booklet will serve the purpose for which it was intended. Acquisition of any foreign materials is more involved but the time and effort spent is well worth the knowledge we are serving all interests in our community.
